The busy sylphs surround their darling
These set the head, and those divide ^{case;}
Some fold the sleeve, whilst others plait ^{the hair,}
And Betty's praised for labours ^{the gown;} not her own

Pope is here describing in minute details the toilet of Belinda with a delicate humour and gentle sarcasm. The whole work of toilet is being done by the unseen sylphs. Some adjusted the head of the lady to give a fine pose and some arrange her hair. Some fold her sleeves over the hands and some double up the gown round her neck. In this way these sylphs are decorating the lady but the credit for the success of the toilet goes to the maid-servant, Betty. She is praised for what in reality the sylphs have done.
